The Richmond Times of the same day, a paper that has been noted since the close of the war for the absolute demonism of its apparent hat red for all things Yankeeish, has an editorial headed "New Leaders," in the course of which it takes occasion to declare that the old Sonthern politicians are played out, and that new men like General Wade Hampton, who can see and understand and improve the opportunity, and who at once and firmly take their stand on the hustings is before negro audiences and address them in terms of political fellowship, are the men for the crisis, and the true leaders for the Southern people to follow. "In South Carolina," it says, "while fossil politicians and "hide-bound statesmen are placing in "jeopardy the liberties of the white "race by the discussion of dead issues," Wade Hampton by a single sharp, "decisive blow, cuts the Gordian knot "which the bungling fingers of the "verde antiques could never have "united."

The Richmond Enquirer is the only paper that halts and hangs fire, and it undertook, some days ago, to reproach those who plunged in on the inevitable of correct propertical that correct properticals and correct properticals."

Its cotemporaries, however, do not seem greatly disturbed by its reproaches, and the Dispatch answers them thus:

"To relieve our neighbor as much as possible, we would add that we surrendered with General Lee in 1865 notwithstanding some brave utterances of odrs, based, perhaps, upon his, that we "would never be conquered;" and that we again surrendered in the same good campany in 1867, notwithstanding of there brave works uttered when we had not been overcome by the sword. We did not stop to discuss the question of inconsistency in either case."

A writer who signs himself a "Democrat," sends a communication, inquiring why we and other Republicans use the term "Copperhead" in speaking of the Democratic party. He says he is at a loss to "discuss the discuss the content of the Democratic party. He says he is at a loss to "discuss the discuss the discuss the first of the comment of the Democratic party. In reply, we would say to the writer, that the term "copperhead" is one of the philological products of the war. The debate was continued to great length, and all were surprised by the position assumed by Mr. Wilson, of lews, the chairman of the judiciarys committee. He has been counted on as sure for the impeachers, and when he advocated an adjournment, and actually assigned as a reason therefor that the country would be better satisfied, and that it would allay the feverish excitement of the country, Messrs. Butler and Stevens opened their eyes in amazement.

and Stevens opened their eyes in amazement.

Very few, if any, ever expected such an acknowledgment to come from that quarter. It would seem to indicate that the chairman of the judiciary commit tee has not found probable cause for impeachment. The House finally adjourned without taking action upon the question of adjournment, and it will come up again to-morrow. The resolution of the Senate to adjourn until December next, it is thought, will be finally concurred in by the House, although there is a majority of that body in favor of an earlier reassembling.

PEOPLE ought to be particularly careful about their feet and throat during such weather-or rather such streetsas we have had of late. Colds are far more easily caught than from a spring or summer rain, and are far more damaging, because of the low temperature of the snowy slush through which we have to tramp, Colds caught from this slush develop into consumption with far greater fa-cility than ordinary colds. The feet ought to be very carefully protected.

THEY have a plan on foot for building cheap railroads for local traffic, at an expense not exceeding $12,000 per mile. Toronto takes the lead. The routes suggested are from Toronto in a northwest direction to Lake Huron. and in a northwest direction to Lake Simcoe, or beyond.

A GOVERNMENT train, consisting of eleven wagons, is reported to have been destroyed by a water spout in the Colorado desert. The train was escorted by two companies of infantry, and several lives were lost. The wagons and stores were carried eighteen miles by the column of water.

THE political canvass in Connecticut ming spirited. The usual indications of a sharp and well-contested fight begin to appear. The newspapers are accusing each other of falsehood, forgery and other peccadillos of a simi-lar kind.

THE Canadian politicians assume that the new "Dominion is a fixed fact, and are busily engaged in canvassing for seats in the "House of Commons."
